Will Shut Up Shop.

It is estimated that there is money enough on hand and promised to keep the Nevada exhibit at the Mid-winter fair open until June 1st, when the State will shut up shop unless those interested in advertising the State's resources put up more money. The State Board of Agriculture Directors have pulled every string at their command to enable them to keep open the exhibit this long. It is wise on their part to close the exhibit while they have money enough to pay all the bills, and not run the State in debt.—Gazette.

A three-line dispatch came the other day saying that the sextant was going to be substituted on ship-board by another instrument. The dispatch was just enough to excite a person's curiosity and at the same time leave him entirely in the dark. The Eastern press explains the matter more in detail. The new instrument is called the solarometer and its points of advantage over the sextant are several. First, it is more accurate. Second, it dispenses with any long arithmetical calculation, but the feature of greatest value is the capacity of the instrument to record observations in fogs. When sun or stars shine dimly or the horizon cannot be seen the sextant is useless. Lieutenant W. A. Boeler, of the Hydrographic office, who went to Europe on the authority of Secretary Herbert to examine the new instrument, says it works admirably under all kinds of weather, and that the North German Lloyd Company is making arrangements to equip all its vessels with them. It is thought the instrument will be adopted in our navy.

W. J. MITCHELL, Pastor.

The Lovelock New Era is authority for the statement that President Cleveland said that George Russell, one of the candidates for Superintendent of the Carson Mint, had the best recommendations he had ever seen, signed as it was by all the World's Fair Commissioners, many Senators and Representatives, but he was indiscreet enough to be introduced by Stewart, whom Grover despises.

Referring to Colonel Breckenridge's desire for a new trial, the Virginia Chronicle quotes from one of Spurgeon's sermons the following:

"Trials teach us what we are. They dig up the soil and let us see what we are made of. They just turn up some of the weeds on the surface."

That is all good, and the only marvelous thing about it is that that chap on the Chronicle ever read one of Spurgeon's sermons.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Cheaper Freight.

The citizens of Sierra Valley had the following published in the Leader of last Friday: "The merchants and traders of Sierra Valley contemplate putting on freight teams this spring as soon as the road over the mountains between the valley and Sierra City is free from snow, to haul their goods from Marysville, which they claim can be done from one-fourth to one-half cent per lb. less than they are now paying the railroad via Truckee. There are plenty of horses and freight wagons idle, and it will cost nothing to fit them for the road. The late advance in freight charges on the Southern Pacific causes this move."

Carson merchants also have in contemplation a similar project. It is probable that steam wagons will be put on the road between Sacramento and the foot of the grade on the Placerville route.

STEWART HEARD FROM.

Washington, D. C. April 23, '94. ED. APPEAL:—Your independent and noble stand in behalf of the people of Nevada against the attempt of the gold men of the East to reorganize the Republican gold party of Nevada is most gratifying. The Republican party which demonetized silver and has given four-fifths of its votes to maintain the gold standard for twenty years, and finally through the aid of President Cleveland, has adopted the gold standard, is not a free coinage party. The people of Nevada are too intelligent to believe such nonsense, and the motives of intelligent men engaged in such a farce must be apparent.

Since the discovery of the omission of the silver dollar from the list of coins in the Mint Act of 1873, by which silver was demonetized, the people have been in favor of the reenactment of the coinage act of 1837 under which silver was coined on the same terms and conditions which apply to the coinage of gold. The demand for the restoration of silver to the place it occupied as a money metal for thousands of years previous to 1873 has compelled politicians and both the old parties to profess to be in favor of the restoration of silver and opposed to the destruction of one-half the metallic money of the world by the continued exclusion of silver from the mint and the reduction of the white metal to a mere commodity.

Previous to the extra session there was a majority in both Houses of Congress at every session since 1873, if uninfluenced by money and Federal patronage, in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver, but every Executive has been a monometallist; and finally at the extra session patronage and the influence of money converted a majority elected in favor of free coinage into a majority for the establishment of the gold standard, which was done by the repeal of every statute recognizing silver as a money metal. About one-fifth of the Republicans and about four-fifths of the Democrats in the two Houses of Congress previous to the extra session made up the standing majority in favor of silver. The extra session proved that the Democratic organization, with the money influence of Wall street and the patronage of the Executive were sufficient to control that great party and subject it to the dictation of the gold syndicate of London and New York. The people have sought relief from falling prices and hard times produced by the rejection of silver as a money metal by electing Republicans and Democrats to Congress, who professed to be silver men, for more than twenty years. The influence of money, Federal patronage, and party organization have thwarted and defeated the demand of the people. No progress has been made. On the contrary, the gold power has grown stronger and stronger every year, until the circulating medium is reduced to the gold standard, and progress and prosperity has given way to poverty and want.

The losing fight for twenty years ought to satisfy reasonable men that there is some defect in the mode of warfare. The Democratic and Republican organizations, with the Federal Executive who is always a gold man, have been the enemy's camp. The people have sent their silver representatives into those hostile camps. The experiment of conducting a war against gold monopoly with the leaders and generals of the people in the enemy's camp has proved a failure. There was no experience in the history of war which justified the experiment, and failure ought to have been anticipated. The easy victory which the gold combination has obtained while the generals of the people were in their political camps has increased the anxiety of the manipulators to keep up the two old organizations. If that can be done there is no reason to suppose that the people will be more successful in the future than they have been in the past. The most influential supporters of the cause of gold monopoly are silver Republicans and silver Democrats who remain true to their party organizations. The more active and devoted a Representative or Senator may be, if he is a Republican or a Democrat, the more dangerous he becomes to the cause of free coinage, because the people naturally argue that if the great leaders whom they trust can be silver men and Republicans and Democrats, the masses may do the same. Their influence as silver advocates secure the votes of silver men to elevate to power a President devoted to the cause of gold monopoly. The power and patronage of the President, with the aid of the influence of the gold combination, has proved sufficient for twenty years to maintain the fraud of 1873 and rivet the chains of gold contraction upon the limbs of enterprise and fill the land with idleness, starvation and want.

After twenty years of an unsuccessful war, is it not time for the people to have their trusted leaders and generals in their own camp? Experience proves that victory is impossible through either of the old parties. It can do no harm to change the mode of warfare and try a third party. It is the only hope. There has been no Congress since silver was demonetized in which free coinage could not have been secured if the friends of silver had been free from party trammels and the influence of Executive patronage. It would have been impossible for any administration to have continued the Government without the aid of the free coinage vote, and if the free coinage members of the two Houses had adopted a hostile attitude to the gold standard administration, they would have been cut off from Federal patronage and beyond the reach of the bribing power of the Federal Executive. A member of Congress who belongs to the party in power is expected to secure offices for his constituents. His re-election generally depends upon success in dispensing patronage, and before he is aware of it, he is under obligations which compel him to submit to the dictation of the servant of the gold ring in the White House. The people ought not to expect favors at the hands of a servant of the gold ring. They must defy him, and elect a servant of their own who will dispense patronage without demanding the surrender of their representatives to the gold trust. The President ought to be the servant of the people, and not of the New York and London gold syndicate, and if the people have placed in power their enemy, recognize him as such, and defy him. When the people are prepared to elect men who are not bound to the money power by party ties or financial influences, they will break the chains of gold contraction and restore prosperity to the country, and not until then.

Yours, very truly,
WM. M. STEWART.

A SAD DEATH.

Mrs. Will Bliss Dies Suddenly of Heart Disease.

About 2 o'clock yesterday in Empire at the residence of her parents, Mrs. Will Bliss dropped dead of heart disease. Eleven days ago Mrs. Bliss was delivered of a child, and yesterday was up and dressed.

While the nurse was making the bed, Mrs. Bliss was caressing her babe, and said to her mother:

"I feel so well today, mother."

She no sooner said this than she fell forward and died. Mrs. Williams immediately called the nurse and going to her daughter said:

"Speak to me, Mabel," but her lips were hushed in death.

Dr. Lee who was called, pronounced the cause of her death heart disease. Mr. and Mrs. Bliss had been married about two years, and the deepest sympathy of the public will go out to Mr. Bliss in his sad bereavement.

Deceased was the daughter of Evan Williams and twenty-five years of age.
